NOTE: These contractors have a C-36 or C-16 State Contractor's License or an A-General Engineering License. They are licensed and certified under the American Water Works Association to test, repair, and install any type of backflow device. In addition, a City Business License is necessary. When installing a backflow device a City Plumbing Permit is required, and if working in the City right-of-way, an Encroachment Permit is needed.

NOTE: These testers do not have a plumbing license and may only test the device or clean the internal parts. They may not install any new devices or shut off valves on backflow devices. If the backflow device needs replacement, upgrading, or ball valves, you will need to contact a contractor that has a C-36 or C-16 State Contractor's License or an A-General Engineering License. All testers are required to have a City Business License.
